PORTFOLIO

Hello, I'm Januki De Silva

I am a third year Fashion Design student working at the meeting point of emotion, narrative, and material. My practice is concept-driven: every collection begins with a story or a feeling, and I build the garment around it through research, textile experimentation, and visual development.

I am drawn to the way clothing can carry meaning beyond the surface. Through manipulated fabrics, layered surfaces, and considered silhouettes, I turn abstract experiences into wearable form. Using fashion illustration, digital CAD, styling, and trend forecasting, I develop ideas from first sketch to finished concept.

My goal is to become a designer whose work challenges conventional ideas of beauty and gives people a way to express who they are.

Introduction

I have skills across the full design process, including illustration (manual and digital), concept development, design development, tech pack development, fashion styling, and garment construction. I am especially proficient in Adobe Illustrator, Adobe Photoshop, and Seamly2D, and I also use Canva to present and communicate my ideas. Alongside my technical skills, I bring strong teamwork, creativity, and clear communication to every project.

1. Project : Avant- Garde

Parasomnia

Concept

PARASOMNIA treats nightmares and sleep disturbance as a psychological landscape. It is anchored by Fuseli's The Nightmare (1781), where the incubus crouches on the sleeper's chest. I wanted to show where fear and distress are felt in the body, not just illustrate a dark mood.

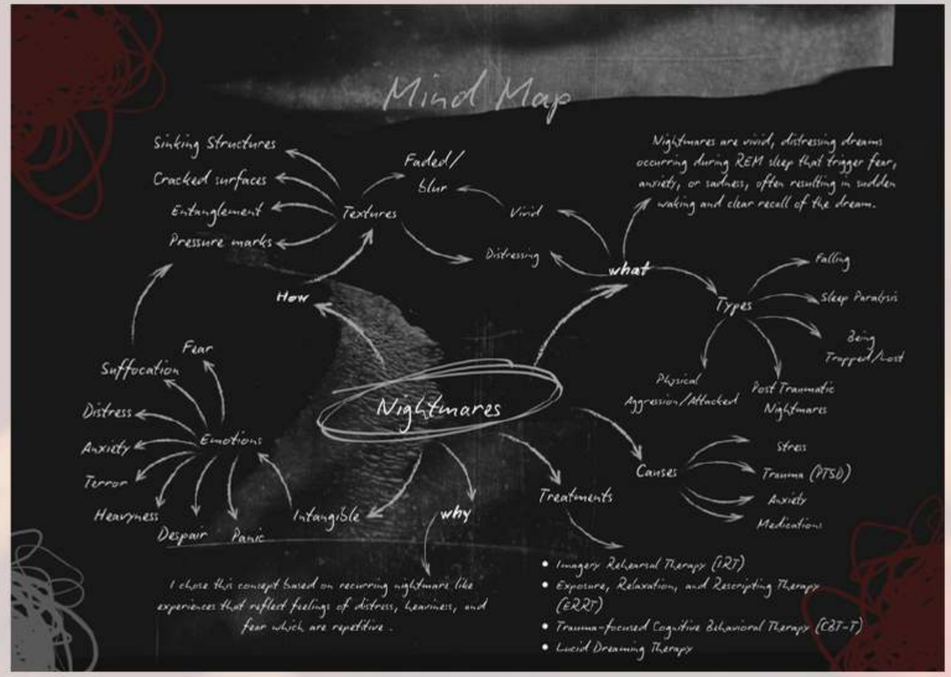

Three words guided every decision: distress (surface damage), messy (how the garment behaves on the body) and vivid (one sharp zone of focal intensity). I mapped eight emotional and bodily zones to eight repeatable silhouette archetypes. For the textile I bonded ripped thread, fabric and cord scraps together with water-soluble fusing to make a new layered fabric, then attached it into the denim and shirt base. The palette is locked to jet black, slate gray, mushroom beige and deep burgundy, so the collection reads as one dream.

Parasomnia

Sustainability Aim

The collection began with a rule of no store-bought fabric. Every textile came from discarded or thrifted material, including waste washed black denim and old long-sleeve shirts, with offcuts, threads, cords and scraps. The distressed look suits this approach, because tears, frays and damage become part of the design instead of flaws to hide.
Thrifted materials need care, so I researched safe cleaning methods and checked for toxins and skin-friendliness before using them. Waste stays in use at every scale, from whole garments down to the smallest scraps.

2. Project : Industry Analysis and Innovation Through Design Solution

SACRED SKIN

Approach: Group project

We Researched and analyzed Teejay Lanka PLC's operations, market position and consumer behavior to find a gap in the industry. Teejay is a leading Sri Lankan knitted fabric manufacturer that supplies lingerie and activewear brands, but it hasn't expanded into lace production or hybrid materials. That limits what partner brands can develop in categories like resort wear.

Our solution was a lace and knit resort wear collection for Intimissimi. It combines breathable, sustainable knits with refined lace textures, and it is designed for female, male and gender-fluid customers. The hybrid material approach supports product diversification and shows how Teejay could grow into new fashion markets as a creative textile partner.

SACRED SKIN

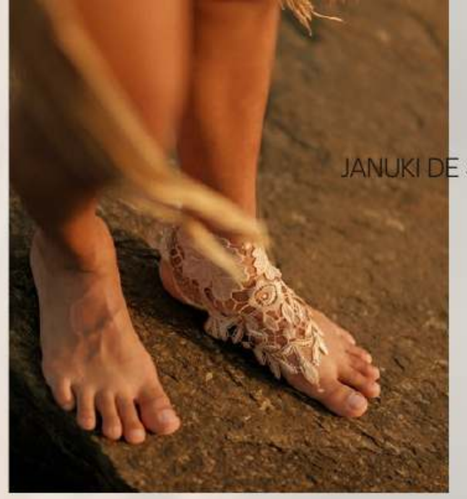

Concept

Sacred Skin reimagines the sacred as something intimate and human. It starts from Orvieto Cathedral, with its striped limestone and basalt, shimmering mosaics, arches and ornament, and shifts spirituality from the distance of monumental architecture to the closeness of the body. The collection treats the body as a space of reverence, where softness, vulnerability and movement replace rigid structure.

Transparency, lightness and tactile layers carry this idea. The cathedral's flowing lines and decorative motifs become airy silhouettes, delicate textures and lace detailing. The result is devotion that is lived and felt, resting gently on the skin, not observed from afar.

TEEJAY LANKA PLC, FORMERLY KNOWN AS TEXTURED JERSEY LANKA, IS A LEADING KNITTED FABRIC MANUFACTURER IN SRI LANKA AND A CONSTITUENT OF THE S&P SRI LANKA .
THE COMPANY IS HEADQUARTERED IN AVISSAWELLA AT THE SEETHAWAKA AND OPERATES ACROSS SEVERAL COUNTRIES INCLUDING INDIA, BANGLADESH, INDONESIA, AND EGYPT.

TEEJAY LANKA MAINLY PRODUCES HIGH QUALITY KNITTED FABRICS SUCH AS SINGLE JERSEY, INTERLOCK, RIB, PIQUE, FLEECE, AND TERRY, WHICH ARE USED TO MANUFACTURE APPAREL LIKE ACTIVEWEAR, CASUALWEAR, AND LINGERIE.

THE COMPANY SUPPLIES FABRICS TO MAJOR GLOBAL BRANDS INCLUDING NIKE, PVH, MARKS & SPENCER, DECATHLON, LIDL, AND CALZEDONIA.

OUR IDENTIFIED GAP

THE ANALYSIS REVEALED A PRODUCT AND MARKET DIVERSIFICATION GAP IN TEEJAY LANKA PLC. WHILE THE COMPANY SPECIALIZES IN HIGH QUALITY KNIT FABRICS FOR LINGERIE AND ACTIVEWEAR, IT HAS NOT EXPANDED INTO LACE PRODUCTION OR HYBRID MATERIAL INNOVATIONS, LIMITING OPPORTUNITIES FOR PARTNER BRANDS TO DEVELOP CATEGORIES SUCH AS RESORT WEAR.

TO ADDRESS THIS GAP, THE PROPOSED SOLUTION INTRODUCES A LACE AND KNIT RESORT WEAR CONCEPT FOR INTIMISSIMI, COMBINING BREATHABLE SUSTAINABLE KNITS WITH REFINED LACE TEXTURES.
THIS HYBRID MATERIAL APPROACH SUPPORTS PRODUCT DIVERSIFICATION, ENCOURAGES INNOVATION, AND HELPS THE COMPANY EXPLORE NEW FASHION MARKETS WHILE STRENGTHENING ITS ROLE AS A CREATIVE TEXTILE PARTNER.

3. Project : Global Crossroads

Cosmic Heirloom

Approach: Urban Contemporary Wear

Global Crossroads brings two cultures together: Afrofuturism and Mexican Otomi embroidery. The Afrofuturist side supplies cosmic imagery and a vision of the future. The Otomi side, drawn from Tenango embroidery, supplies dense, colorful hand-stitched patterns of animals, birds and flowers. Together they form a collection where heritage is carried into a futuristic identity.

The collection is told through The Threadwalker's Journey, a symbolic story of a futuristic traveler who moves through time and space, weaving ancestral wisdom into future vision. Each chapter is a phase of awakening, from reconnecting with cultural roots and hearing the echoes of the earth, to sending signals into space and embracing new identities. Garments evolve along the way and become vessels of memory, resistance and transformation.

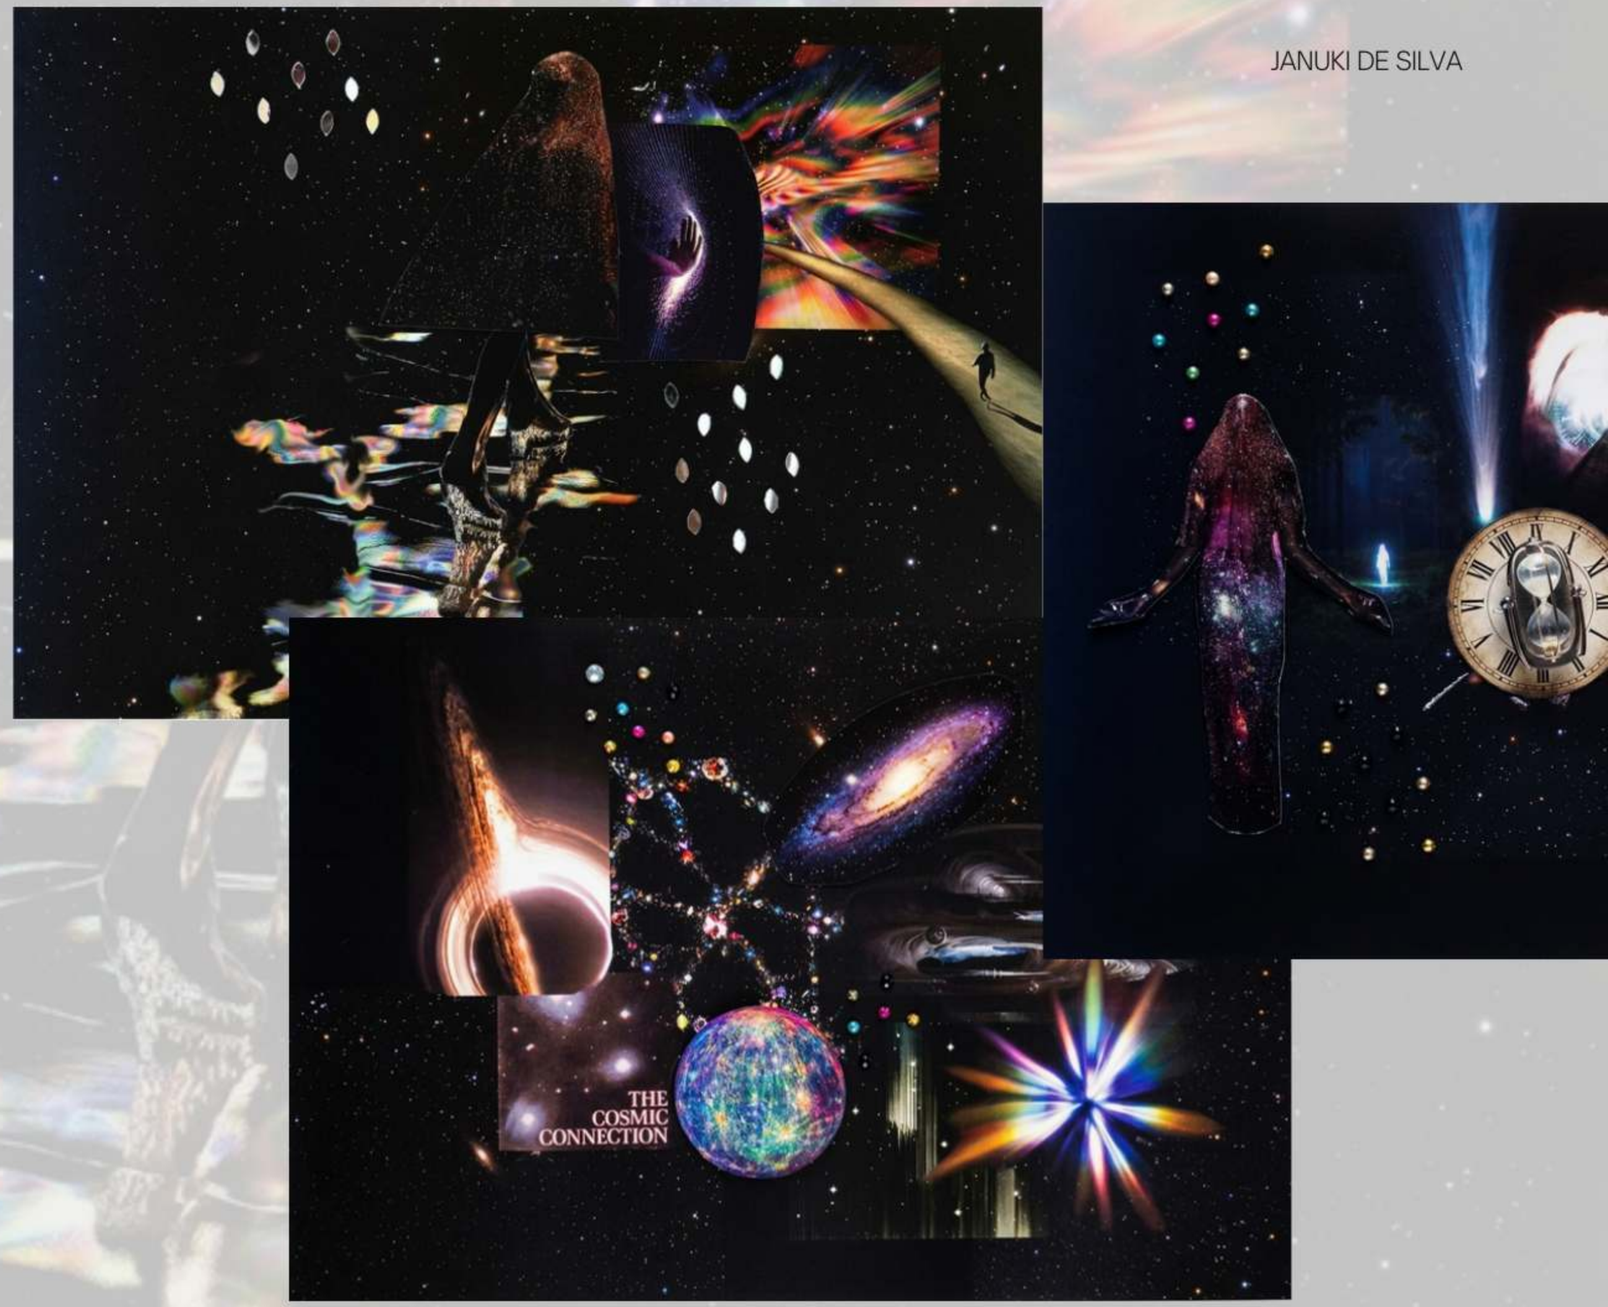

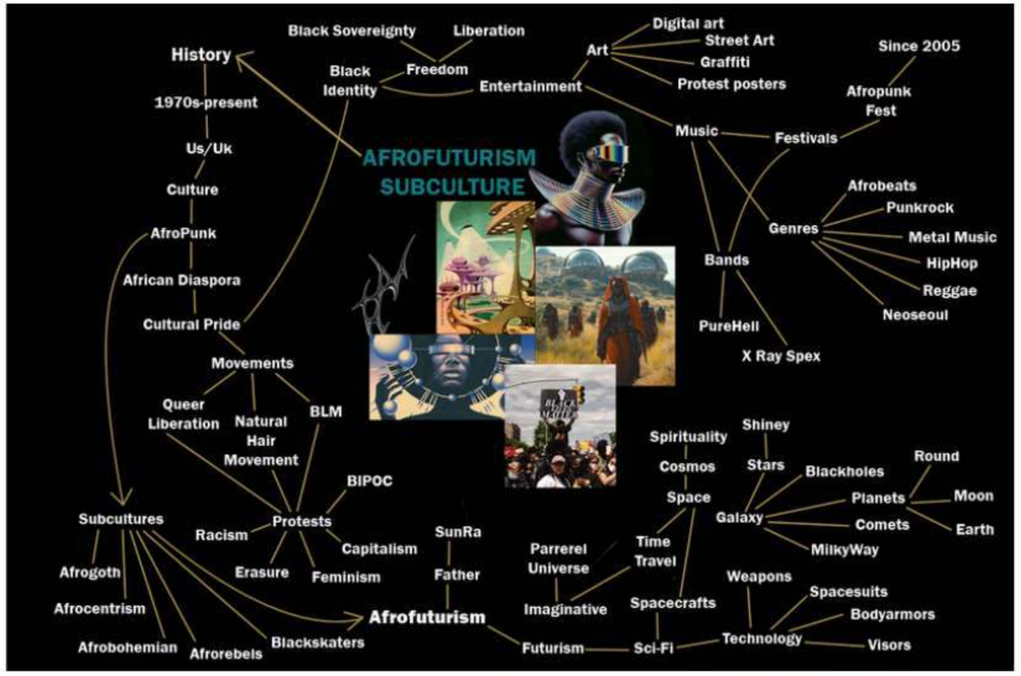

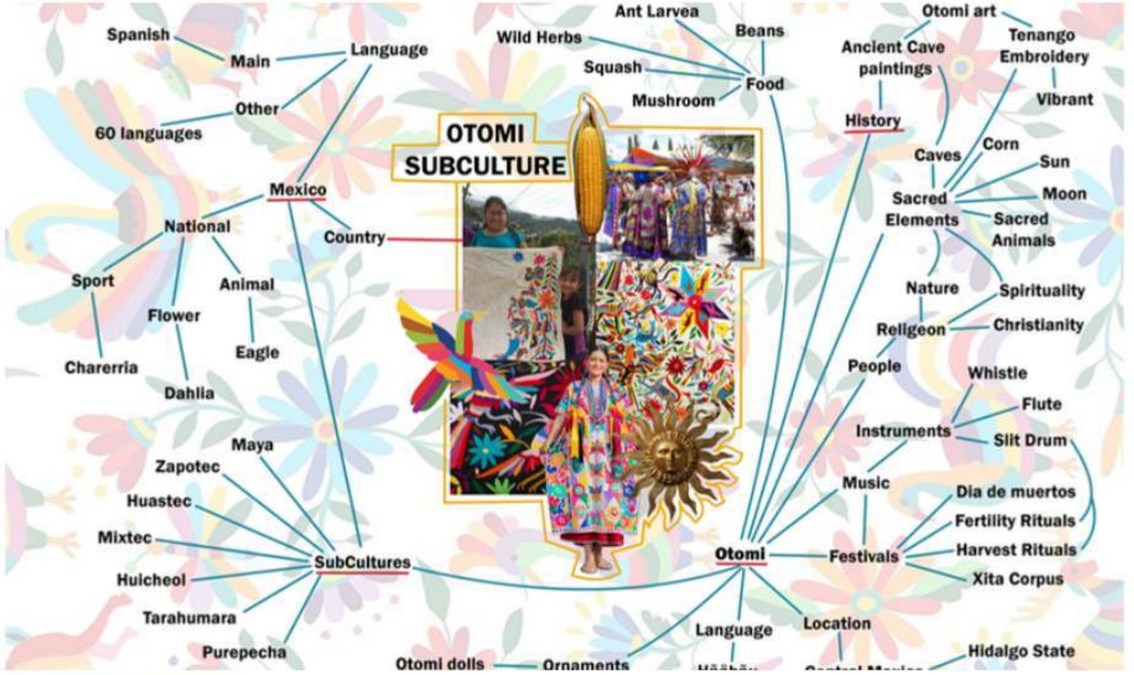

Cosmic Heirloom

Concept:

Cosmic Heirloom is the idea of carrying ancestral wisdom and cultural heritage into the future. It preserves the past by transforming it into something new and visionary, not by keeping it in a museum. “Heirloom” stands for the traditions, stories and artistry passed down through generations. “Cosmic” suggests that this heritage doesn’t belong to one time or place, but crosses borders and eras into a futuristic, imaginative world. A Cosmic Heirloom becomes a symbol of resilience, pride and evolution, rooted in the past but created for the stars.

GUCCI

Approach: Group project

For this project we researched Gucci's brand campaigns and chose the Ancora campaign from Spring/Summer 2024. It was unveiled in January 2024, a few months after the runway show, and was Sabato De Sarno's first advertising campaign as creative director, turning his runway vision into commercial imagery. The name plays on the Italian word's double meaning of "again" and "still", which Gucci framed as "also now, also then."

From the campaign we selected six looks and styled them as they appear, matching the garments, accessories, proportions and attitude of the originals. The campaign's saturated whites, deep burgundy, navy and light-wash denim against a clean studio backdrop, with models posed close together in a relaxed group, set the standard we worked to recreate. The project let us study how a luxury house builds a campaign look through color, silhouette, accessories and posing.

The Gucci Ancora campaign was unveiled in January 2024, roughly four months after the Spring/Summer 2024 runway show. It marked Sabato De Sarno's first advertising campaign as creative director, translating his runway vision into commercial imagery. Gucci's own English gloss for the name framed it as "also now, also then" playing on ancora's double sense of "again" and "still."

JANUKI DE SILVA

Clip Studio Paint

I create expressive illustrations through both hand sketching and digital drawing. My hand sketches rely on layered linework and cross-hatching to build depth, texture, and mood, while my digital work in Clip Studio Paint explores soft shading, rich color, and detailed rendering. Across both approaches, I focus on capturing emotion, character, and individuality in every face, and I use illustration as the starting point for developing my fashion concepts.

4-strand square-knot macramé braid

- Arrange 4 cords vertically: 1 – 2 – 3 – 4.
- Take cord 1 (far left) and pass it over cords 2 & 3, then under cord 4.
- Take cord 4 (far right) and pass it under cords 2 & 3, then through the loop made by cord 1.
- Pull both outer cords gently → this creates the first square knot.
- Repeat the same movement from the opposite side to create the next knot.
- Keep alternating left → right → left → right.
- Pull each knot with roughly the same tension so the braid stays thick and even.
- Continue until it reach the length.
- I used this method for the shoulder part and the armhole part and joined the gauze & cords from knots (Shoulder 13cm~, armhole ----------

Conclusion

FASHION, FOR ME, BEGINS WITH MEANING. I AIM TO BECOME A DESIGNER WHO BUILDS COLLECTIONS AROUND STORYTELLING, EXPERIMENTATION AND CULTURAL CURIOSITY. THROUGH THE PROJECTS IN THIS PORTFOLIO, I HAVE EXPLORED CONCEPT BUILDING, TEXTILE DEVELOPMENT, GARMENT CONSTRUCTION, STYLING AND INDUSTRY RESEARCH, WITH SUSTAINABILITY GUIDING MY MATERIAL CHOICES.

I LET EACH CONCEPT, WHETHER EMOTIONAL, CULTURAL OR NARRATIVE, SHAPE THE MATERIALS, THE SILHOUETTE AND THE STORY. I ENJOY EXPERIMENTING WITH TEXTILES, RESEARCHING CULTURE AND CONTEXT, AND WORKING WITH A TEAM TO TAKE AN IDEA FROM RESEARCH TO REALIZATION.

I AM READY TO LEARN, COLLABORATE AND GROW WITH THE INDUSTRY, ONE CONSIDERED DESIGN AT A TIME.
